

Community Ministry Parent Letter

Have you ever traveled to Scotland? Your kids have ... well, sort of. They “traveled” through Kids On Mission to meet Gena Wilson, a missionary who lives in Glasgow. But here’s the interesting thing: even though she lives in a country that is known for its beauty, she chooses to live in one of the roughest neighborhoods in all of Great Britain. She lives among the poor, the addicted and the hurting so that she can shine for Christ in a very dark place.

Your kids also found out that Gena has been very sick with cancer. She had to return to the U.S. for treatment. They prayed for Gena’s healing and her return to Scotland. You can see her videos and photos at kidsonmission.org. You can also find out updates on her health at commissionstories.com/eurasia. Just type “Gena Wilson” into the search field.

Through these experiences on community ministry, leaders encouraged your kids to look around them and find people who need the light of Christ. As a family, think about your neighborhood and the people you meet. How can your family serve others and demonstrate a love that leads to Jesus?

Be on mission together.
