

IMB missionary Daniel Byrd plays with a Roma child during Bible study one day. Daniel teaches Roma people about Jesus and helps them understand that God loves them very much.

International World Changers students dance and sing songs with Roma children at a camp in Romania. Students came from the U.S. to Romania to tell Roma children about Jesus.

Roma children run down a street in their neighborhood. Many Roma children do not attend school and have trouble finding work when they grow up since they have no education.

Roma kids are normally very shy at first since they live in close communities. It might take a long time, but once they are confident, the friendship grows quickly.

An International World Changers volunteer tells the salvation story to a Roma child in Romania. By using pictures and translators, students from the U.S. can share the story of Jesus Christ with people all over the world.
